In the event of a tie in overall points at the end of the college sports season, the Capital One Cup winner will be determined by the tying school with the most number of championships, counting both Group A and Group B sports equally. In the event that the tying schools have the same number of championships, then the tiebreaker would default to the school that has the next highest finish among its Top 10 finishes.

For example, if Schools A and B both have one championship, but School A has a 2nd place finish while School B's next highest finish is 3rd place, then School A would claim the Capital One Cup.
